

Abstract

In general, in one aspect, the disclosure describes a computer program for analyzing private equity investments. The program includes instructions that access public equity data identifying performance of a set of more than one public equities. The instructions also access private equity data identifying one or more characteristics of different private equity investments. The program analyzes a private equity investment based, at least in part, on the public equity data and the private equity data of other private equity investments.